VICTORIA MEMORIAL THE JAPANESE COAST TRADE

is known of the Japanese coast trade. A fleet of steamers, large and small ply around the coast at fixed dates, and so far as the foreign merchant is concerned if Brought forward ...... $41,845 makes very little difference to him whether the means of transport be equal to the demand or not. He is shut out from any direct interest in it, though it may easily be seen how he is affected indirectly. The Nippon Yus | Kaisha and the Osaka Shosen Kaisha have practically a monopoly of the entire coast trade, an arrangement having been apparently entered into by which neither encroaches on the domain of the other, thus checking all healthy com-5 petition. It may be a matter of surprise to many to learn that the supply of steamers 75 for much of the coast trade is shamefully inadequate. Places, especially on the 100 North-West Coast, could be named where merchandise has to lie for months for want of means of transport. That trade is 25 seriously crippled, in consequence, need scarcely be said. But the predominant Japanese Steamship Company has 15 doubtless a policy of its own to pursue. At any rate it has shipping affairs almost wholly in its own hands, and what arails the voice of the country trader against such an organisation? It was not for nothing that the Japanese Trenty Revisionists managed to retain absolute control of the coasting trade; but what they have secured in one way only results in serious retardation of enterprise and industry in another. We have instauced the North-West Coast as being specially affected by the present policy of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha. It is a long coast hne, notorious for its bad harbours and shallow roadsteads, but nevertheless have ing on or near it many of the most flourish ing towns in the empire. Extensive rice plains extend along it and fertile valleys lead down to it. Moreover, in the extreme North-West lies a mountainous interior rich in minerals, whose only outlet is the Sca in of Japan. For this extensive sea-board the Nippon Yusen Kaisha rans some six steamers of moderate carrying capacity per month, but, except in the summer months, several place receive little notice, being rarely called at. To the north of Tsuruga may be mentioned the following prosperous towns which lie wither on the sea-board or not for from it :- Fukui, Kunazawa, Toyama, Nagaoka, Niigata, Tsuruga oka, Sakata, Akita, and Noshiro. Some of these places 15 have recently been rendered more or less independent of sea-transport by the exten-50 siou of the railway system - a fact, however, not affecting our contention that a policy of monopoly which cramps local enterprise 30 is not based on sound business principles. A glamour is cast over the shareholders in these concerns by the display made by the 20 flag in foreign waters; politically, this may mean something, but that is a point of view with which we are not now concerned. Too high a price may be paid even for that. Japaneso steamers run between Chefoo and Port Arthur, but atrates, it is alleged, which connot compote with the Russian boats. Statistics, of course, are not available, se that we cannot hazard an opinion as to the paying propects of the China Coast trade, but we do know the enormous price the 10 Nippon Yusen Kaisha had to pay for its 10 first venture in European waters. And all this time their own ponst trade is allowed to suffer, -s state of things which only big subsidies and interest in high places can successfully place beyond the reach of remedy. We strongly suspect there was more in the recent outbreak amongst certain shareholders of the Nippon Yusen Kaishs than was ever allowed to meet the public eye, for the assertions and demands of the recalcitrants were too absurd to be accepted. Anyhow. though the movement seemed to come to a sudden and inglorious end-by what means, no one outside those concerned seems to know-there are signs that it is to be raviv. ed. Japanese husiness methods are still in a state of evolution; they form a curious chapter in the history of New Jupan .-Robe Chronicle.

Correspondence relative to the examination of dead rats found on the streets and sent to the Mortnary was laid on the table at to-day's meeting of the Sanitary Board Dr Bell reported that he had examined 100 of these rats, and found that only two had died of plague. The infected rata were found in Praya East and Des Voeux Road Central. Dr Atkinson, in forwarding the report to Government, said the result was important as showing a diminution of plague-infected rats coincident with a de crease in cases among human beings. At other fact worthy of note was that it was from Des Voeux Road Central that some o the last notified cases had come. It was pity that the authorities could not ascertain from what houses the rats had come, as they had been thrown into the street and picked up by the rat-collectors. His Excellency appended the following minute :- This is valuable and interesting. What is now being done by the rit-catchers? I think may be well to try the experiment of getting professional rat-catchers from Homo to supervise operations. If rats are to be tackled we must not make two bites. of a cherry. Struggle for Engineering Supremacy. A letter from Lord George Hamilton to Mr John G. A. Baird, Member for the Central Division of Glasgow, recommends the engineering trade to adopt strong measures to expand the power of production and prevent contracts for locomotives falling permanently into the hands of foreigners. The India Government lately had to postpone placing orders until progress had been made with large South African orders; but Indian Companies cannot wait, and have been obliged to accept tenders from a Hanover firm, which is supplying locomotives much cheaper and quicker. Lord George Hamilton suggests the standardization of locomotives, and, if possible, a forecast of the number of locomotives required for the ensuing year. In consultation with Lord Curzon, he has arranged for a conference of Indian milway engineers at Calcutta, next December, to consider these Interesting Archæological Discovery.

A valuable archæolopical find has just Lord Kitchener's proclamation of last been made near the ancient town of Novgorod, in the province of that name, on the banks of Lake Ilmen. The articles found include hundreds of flint arrowheads, axeheads of slate, flint fish hooks, and an enormous mass of crockery and similar fragments, ornamented in the same style as those found previously in other parts of the same province. The discovery has been made by M. Peredolsky, of the St. Petersburg University, a son of the archæologist who originally studied this province, and always insisted upon the existence in the neighbourhood of Lake Ilmen of a numerous population during the Stone Age, a theory which thus receives satisfactory proof. The articles found are all of one class and date, indicating the existence of a considerable tribe, which must have either been wiped out or have migrated to other regions before attaining any higher stage of culture than that of the Stone Age.

There was a special practice yesterday afternion, to get members into form for the Interport match, in which Hongkong will fire, weather permitting, on Wednesday, 6th November. There will be another practice on Saturday, after which the team will be definitely fixed. The weather was good yesterday, a bright steady light, but th wind, especially at 600 yards, was a little uncertain, blowing alternately from the right and from the rear. Of course, it is not expected that such a high average can be attained now as in former years, owing to the reduction in the targets. On the whole, therefore, yesterday's average was satisfactory, especially when it is remenbered that such doughty veterans as Mar-shall, McLennan and Wallace were absent. Lammert, who fired at the new Bisley targets for the first time, and with a strange rifle, is to be congratulated on his perform ance. He had a possible at 500 yards; and only fell short of this at 600 yards by one point on his last shot. Appended are the ten highest scores:-

MEDIZEVAL BARBARISM.

Canton, October 29.

Letters received in Canton tell of an attack upon and capture of a pawrahop at a place called Tong Ha, in the San Ui District. To the eye of the European, these lofty pawnshops look like the castles of the West. Their strength, being mostly built of stone, serves a double purpose, preservation from fire and safety from robbers. That at least is the intention, but it sometimes proves in vain. The pawnshop in question stands in a fish pond, which thus answers the purpose of a moat. It has been there for many a year, and is known to contain many valuables. Extra care was therefore exercised by the proprietors. A kind of drawbridge allowed communication with the shore, and this drawbridge was let down only during business hours. But even all this precaution has utterly failed. Last Thursday night, a band of robbers, seven hundred strong, sppeared at T'ong-Ha. Their object was the pawnshop. They had made all preparations, including a bridge between the shore and the buildings. The men in the pawnshop soon realized Czolgosz, the assessin of the late Presi- the danger of their position, and for a time had the best of the fight, killing several of their assailants. This exasperated the robbers and led to a change of tactics. A party was despatched to the village to collect counterjanes. These, after being saturated with kerosene oil, were piled up against the door of the pawnshop, which soon caught fire. This left the inmates no alternative but to speedily throw open the doors. As a revenge for their lost conrades, the robbers shot in cold blood the son of the proprietor of the pawnshop. In a comparatively short time, the numerous band of robbers had helped itself to everything that was worth taking.

While the siege of the pawnshop was in progress, the villagers kept up a running fight with the robbers; who replied, killing one of the villagers and wounding many others. It goes for the saying that these desperadoes made good their escape.

THE LATE MR J. J. FRANCIS.

The funeral of the late Mr J. J. Francis. King's Counsel (whose death took place suddenly in Japan on 22nd September last, and whose remains arrived in Hongkong, per the German Blail steamer Suchsen, on Tuesday evening), took place in the beauti-93 ful little Roman Catholic cometery at Happy Valley yesterday evening at five o'clock. The silver-mounted coffin rested overnight in the small chapel at the top of the main walk, and in the early morning a requien mass was said over the remains. During the day many people of different denominations visited the Chapel, and handsome floral wreaths, crosses and harps, etc. brought by the deceased advocate's numerous admirers soon over-filled the available With reference to the communication space. The Chapel was draped exterfrom the Secretariat which appeared in our nally and internally with black cloth. The clergy then retired, but many people hung around the grave watching with feelings of sadness the grave-dingers perform to deceased. A touching tribute was paid to the deceased by the little girls of the French and Italian conrepts, who were present along with the Sisters to the number of about 150, When most of the people had dispersed they approached the grave and crowding round it gave niterance to a short silent prayer; after which they moved away some of them in tears. But some of our local marksmen were firing at the new Bisley target for the first time, and some of the men who have helped to win previous contests were unavoidably absent. Let us hope they will be able to get some practice before the match takes place. Mr G. P. Lammert's 100 was a fine effort. In the Interpert cricket matches between Kobe and Yokohania, Yokohama has to love. won eight games, Kobe five, and two have been drawn. Commenting on the last game, the Japan Herald says :- The match will be memorable as the first interport contest won by Kobe on Yokohama ground, and the fact cannot be gainsaid that the local eleven were badly heaten at all points of the game. Murray, the Kobe captain, is unquestionably one of the finest bowlers that has ever played in interport mutches. He captured no less than seven wickets in Yokohama's first innings, and five in the second. In presenting the championship flag to the captain of the Kobs team, Mr White said Yokohama had been beaten at all points of the game, and this would be a very good thing if it had the result of making them brace up and redcom-their The Yokohama team contained some old crocks who ought to be weeded out of the team, if somebody could be found to take their places. As for the Kobs captain, he (White) had nover seen him bowl better; Hancock's batting was too much for Yokohama and the same with Kobe's fielding. He congratulated Mr. Murray on being the first Kobe captain who had taken the flag from Yokohama on Yokohama ground, while he (Mr White, was the first Yokohama interport captain who had lost it on his own ground,

On Saturday last, the Club opened the season against/the Argonauts. The match has already been described in detail, but perhaps a few notes here will be useful. Some time previous, I had heard that the 'Argios'-for such is their pet name-were beut on making a name for themselves in the Colony, and, with this highly commend-To able purpose in view, had been training asthose who have followed the records in siduously. And now to the game. The Club team were four short-Russell, 'Bon-

Encouraged by a long string of 'handy men,' they attacked again and again, and I really thought Bevan would be beaten; but just termination, drove them back till halftime arrived with a clean score sheet. In the second half; the 'pace' of the first half on the second floor of the hotel, told its tale. Both teams appeared to be distressed, but still the game was keenly cess about ten minutes before the final he was entertained to light refreshment blow of the whistle. Beran left his goal at a critical moment, -- the result being a goal.

For the Club, Chad Kew and Howard played a sterling game. The halves were fair. Two new men were tried, Bennett and Caulfield. Both played a hard game, but the whole line was sadly out of training. Of the forwards, Von der Pfordten was far and away the best, and I hope to see him figuring prominently in the Club XI this season.
